DAYTON ARTINSTITUTE learning library April 2022 BEGIN TRANSCRIPT

Hi, friends! Welcome to "Art Vids for Kids" where we explore artworks and learn new things together through video.

To start us off, I want you to close your eyes and I'll read to you a poem. While I read, I want you to imagine a picture that matches my words. Are you ready? Here we go...

Towering Mount Fuji Through the tall grasses and greens Brave and beautiful

Now open your eyes. How were you imagining what I described? Did it look like this artwork? How was what you imagined similar to this artwork? How was it different?

That was an example of Haiku, which is a special form of poetry that originally comes from Japan. Here soon, on April 17, it will be National Haiku Poetry Day.

Many people find Haiku poetry beautiful because it's simple—and it doesn't even have to rhyme. The poem is just three lines long. The first line is just 5 syllables, the second line is to be 7 syllables, and your last line of poetry will be like your first, just 5 syllables. Haiku is often inspired by nature and the beauty of our world, just like how the poem I first read to you described the artwork on your screen.

Speaking of this artwork, let's check it out some more. See how the artist has shown us Mount Fuji in the background? Mount Fuji is the tallest mountain in Japan. Here, it sort of looks like it's floating above everything else because the artist has placed clouds around it that are the same color as the sky.

If we were inside this painting, where are we standing? Because of this particular view of the mountain, we are probably standing on the plains that surround it. This is actually a real place called the Musashi Plain. From the floor of the plain, bright green grass called pampas shoot upward, and help frame our view of the mountain.

This artwork is also a screen, which means the artist painted the image on paper first which is attached to a series of folding panels. And, it is part of a pair which means there's a companion screen to this one. What do you notice about this new view? Right! We cannot see the mountain anymore but now, if you look closely, we have a low-hanging moon. Why might the moon be hanging so low?

DAYTON A R T INSTITUTE

Somewhere between 300 and 350 years old, this screen was made by an unknown artist in Japan. And, as you probably noticed, it is colored with lots of bright gold. On your next visit to the museum, you can find it in Gallery 106 of our Patterson-Kettering Wing of Asian Art. I think you will be amazed when you see it in-person.

Finally, before we go, I'd like to challenge you to write your own piece of Haiku poetry. Remember "5-7-5" that is the amount of syllables you'll need for each of the three lines. Take inspiration from any space around you, whether a nearby park, your school, or your own backyard. Once you've written it, share it with your closest friend. I'll leave you with one more Hauki:

Thanks for joining me Seeing art and poetry How inspiring

Thanks again friends and check back next month for a new "Art Vids for Kids"!

END TRANSCRIPT

Click here for full multimedia presentation.

MEDIA CREDITS*

commons.wikimedia.org klett-sprachen.de lifestyle.inquirer.net readersdigest.ca nicepng.com ecs.utah.edu clipart-library.com metroparks.org elevar.com houzz.com pixy.org kissclipart.com commons.wikimedia.org flaticon.com pinpng.com flaticon.com

*Images used for educational purposes only

QUESTIONS OR IDEAS FOR FUTURE VIDS?

edu@daytonart.org